Target: 'Outlaw' Cleric

NABIL AL JURANI/AP

CLERIC'S CLOUT: About 150 Shiite militiamen took over the governor's house in Basra, Iraq, on Monday to protest the coalition's actions against anti-American cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, seen in poster.

U.S. seeks arrest of Shiite firebrand, heightening tension after deadly clashes

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | U.S. administrators in Iraq declared a radical Shiite cleric an "outlaw" Monday and announced a warrant for his arrest, heightening a confrontation after battles between his supporters and coalition troops killed at least 52 Iraqis and nine coalition troops, including eight Americans.

American officials would not say when they would move to arrest Muqtada al-Sadr, who is holed up in the main mosque in Kufa, south of Baghdad, guarded by armed supporters.

"We don't fear death and martyrdom gives us dignity from God," said al-Sadr, 30, who has frequently denounced the U.S. occupation in his sermons.

Meanwhile, U.S. troops surrounded the city of Fallujah, west of Baghdad, poised for a major operation in response to the grisly slaying and mutilation of four American civilians by insurgents there last week.

The showdown with al-Sadr threatened to heighten tensions with Iraq's Shiite Muslim majority at a time when U.S. troops are burdened by the Sunni guerrillas' bloody insurgency. But American officials apparently hope the Shiite public — many of whom distrust al-Sadr — will not rally around the cleric.

Brig. Gen. Mark Kimmitt said the potential for violence depended on "whether [al-Sadr] decides to come peacefully or whether he decides to come not peacefully."

Hundreds of al-Sadr's armed militiamen control Kufa, holding its police station and blocking a road leading to the main mosque.

ON THE LAKE

Sink or Swim

A competition on Ohio's Turkeyfoot Lake on Saturday was fueled by ingenuity, a little luck and a lot of upper-body strength. Student engineers came from all over to participate in a concrete canoe race sponsored by the American Society of Civil Engineers. According to the race's organizers, the concrete canoe illustrates the rule that even extremely heavy objects float, as long as they displace more than their weight in water. The stone boats looked like any other canoe, but ranged in weight from 130 to more than 200 pounds. A typical fiberglass or aluminum model weighs about a third of that. (AP)

Homemade Memories

While at the prom, it's best to stick to your date. No problem for Lynlea Jayo and Josh Traugher, a high-school couple in Hagerman, Idaho, who used duct tape, thrift-store jackets and bed sheets to make their own formal wear for just $30. Jayo and Traugher's creativity put them in the running for $2,500 scholarships. The Duck brand duct-tape company also gave $2,500 to the school as part of a national contest. Jayo's dress was made from an old bed sheet, while Traugher's slacks, shirt and tie were made using six rolls of duct tape. (AP)

TRADITIONS

A Special Hand-Me-Down

Little Katherine Elizabeth Schulz of La Crosse, Wis., is only a month old, but she helped her family continue a 110-year-old tradition by becoming the 50th infant to wear a cherished baptismal dress handed down through five generations. The dress was made in 1894 by Josephine Voves Krismer — Katherine's great-great-great grandmother — who used her wedding gown to sew a baptismal outfit for her five children. Infants typically wear the dress for only a brief time during the baptismal ceremony and then are changed into a new outfit. (AP)

More Troops Considered for IraqMilitary may need to increase deployment if rioting intensifies

WASHINGTON | U.S. military commanders have begun studying ways they might increase troops in Iraq should violence spread much more widely, a senior officer said Monday.

Generals believe they have enough forces to handle the attacks that have been coming from various quarters, but they want to know what is available if the situation gets worse, said the officer, briefing reporters on condition of anonymity.

Over the weekend, supporters of Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr rioted in Baghdad and four other cities in fighting that killed eight U.S. troops, a Salvadoran soldier and at least 52 Iraqis.

The senior officer portrayed the weekend's violence as an attempt by al-Sadr to increase his influence ahead of the expected June 30 transfer of power from the U.S.-led occupation to an Iraqi government. The officer is with U.S. Central Command, the military authority overseeing operations in Iraq.

President Bush said Monday he is committed to the June 30 deadline despite the violence and questions from some members of his own party whether the date should hold.

Bush: U.S. Lacked Intel on 9/11 ThreatPresident says he looks forward to testimony from security adviser

WASHINGTON | President Bush said Monday he will tell the commission investigating the Sept. 11 attacks that his administration lacked the information needed to prevent the terrorists from striking the United States.

The federal panel reviewing the attacks plans to meet soon with Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney in a joint private session to determine whether anything could have been done to stop the attacks.

A date for the meeting has been set but neither the commission nor the White House has disclosed it. Bush said he looks forward to "sharing information with them."

"Let me just be very clear about this," he said. "Had we had the information that was necessary to stop an attack, I'd have stopped the attack. ... If we'd have known that the enemy was going to fly airplanes into our buildings, we would have done everything in our power to stop it."

Bush

Bush also said National Security Adviser Condoleezza Rice "knows exactly what took place and will lay out the facts" when she testifies

Thursday before the 10-member bipartisan panel. "I'm looking forward to people hearing her," he said.

Rice's testimony was assured only after Bush changed course last week under pressure and decided to allow her to appear publicly and under oath. HOPE YEN (AP)

Lax Rules Led to Blackout

Investigators urge new safeguards to avoid widespread outages

WASHINGTON | Disregard for voluntary rules intended to ensure the flow of electricity opened the way for last summer's blackout in eight states and Canada, investigators said Monday in their final report. They urged government standards with teeth to ward off future outages.

There was a clear understanding long before the blackout last August that the Ohio region where the problems began was highly vulnerable to grid instability, said the report from a joint U.S.-Canada task force.

Had the situation been properly addressed, the cascading blackout that sped across states from Michigan to New York and into Canada probably would have been averted, the report concluded. Something as simple as shutting off 200 megawatts of power an hour might have kept the problem from spreading, investigators said.

But FirstEnergy Corp., the Ohio utility whose lines initially failed, had little understanding of its own power transmission system because it had not carried out the recommended long-term planning and safeguards — and backup monitoring system — that it needed, the report said.

Many of those safeguards and procedures aimed at detecting and responding to potentially devastating system problems, were outlined — but also ignored — under voluntary industry standards that were in place, said the report.

Investigators said they found at least seven violations of industry-sponsored North America Electric Reliability Council (NERC) reliability rules linked to the blackout.

The task force, created by the U.S. and Canadian governments to examine the worst blackout in U.S. history, urged creation of mandatory government reliability standards with penalties for those who violate them. H. JOSEF HEBERT (AP)

Study to Probe Risks For Children

Effort to examine what environmental factors can harm kids

WASHINGTON | Does a pregnant woman's exposure to certain chemicals put her child at risk of learning disabilities? Do genetics and pollution interact to cause asthma? What's the real impact of TV on toddlers?

The government is preparing the largest study of U.S. children ever performed — it will track 100,000 from mothers' wombs to age 21 — to increase understanding of how the environment affects youngsters' health.

It's called the National Children's Study, and pediatric specialists say it is coming at a crucial time. Rates of autism, asthma, certain birth defects and other disorders are on the rise, as is concern about which environmental factors play a role.

The study "really represents our generation's best hope of coming to learn the environmental causes of these conditions," says Dr. Philip Landrigan, an expert on children and the environment at New York's Mount Sinai School of Medicine.

Hit-and-Run Driver Issues Apology

TAMPA, FLA. | A schoolteacher stepped forward Monday and admitted she was the hit-and-run driver who apparently struck four children as they crossed the street. Two of the youngsters died.

In an apology addressed to the children's mother, 28-year-old Jennifer Porter said at a news conference: "I wish there was something I could say to ease your pain. I know there is nothing I can do to bring your precious sons back."

Her lawyer, Barry Cohen, said Porter was too scared to stop after the accident last Wednesday. "No one knows how he or she will react in the face of what Jennifer was faced with," Cohen said, adding Porter was "frightened beyond imagination."

Porter was not immediately charged. "We still have to prove it," sheriff's spokesman Rod Reder said. (AP)

L.A. Times Tops Pulitzer Winners List

Washington Post's Shadid honored for international reporting

NEW YORK | The Los Angeles Times won five Pulitzer Prizes on Monday, including one for its breaking news coverage of the massive wildfires that ravaged Southern California last fall.

The prize for international reporting went to Anthony Shadid of The Washington Post, for what the board called his "extraordinary ability to capture, at personal peril," the voices and emotions of Iraqis as their country was invaded, their leader toppled and their way of life upended.

The Los Angeles Times also won Pulitzers in criticism, editorial writing and national reporting for its examination of the tactics that have made Wal-Mart the largest company in the world.

The five awards were the second most ever awarded to a newspaper in a single year. The New York Times won seven in 2002 primarily for its coverage of the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks and aftermath.

"My feeling is this reflects the depth of talent at this paper and the depth of dedication across all departments," Los Angeles Times editor John S. Carroll told the staff.

The New York Times won the public service award for an examination by David Barstow and Lowell Bergman of death and injury among American workers.

The commentary award went to Leonard Pitts Jr. of The Miami Herald for his "fresh, vibrant columns that spoke, with both passion and compassion, to ordinary people on often divisive issues." DEEPTI HAJELA (AP)

U.S. Troops Lock Down Fallujah

1,200 Marines encircle city where insurgents staged grisly ambush

FALLUJAH, IRAQ | Hundreds of U.S. and Iraqi troops in tanks and armored Humvees surrounded the city of Fallujah on Monday, ready to launch a crackdown on insurgents after a mob killed four Americans and mutilated their bodies last week.

Explosions and gunfire were heard from the city — including a string of up to 30 blasts, apparently shelling, late Monday — as Marines met resistance while probing the outer neighborhoods of the city with reconnaissance missions.

At least one Iraqi gunman was killed in the exchanges. A U.S. Marine was killed in the area earlier Monday.

Troops dug trenches on the city's edges, sealed off roads in and out and imposed a nighttime curfew.

U.S. commanders have been vowing a massive response to pacify Fallujah after the slaying of the four American civilians — who were under contract to the U.S. coalition as security guards — on Wednesday.

Scenes of Iraqis dragging the four bodies through the streets raised revulsion in the United States and showed the depth of anti-U.S. sentiment in the city. Two charred corpses were hung from a bridge as Iraqis cheered. Sunni clerics in the city condemned the mutilations, calling them un-Islamic, though they didn't criticize the killings.

Some 1,200 U.S. Marines and two battalions of Iraqi security forces will be involved in the operation, said Lt. James Vanzant of the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force. "The city is surrounded," said Vanzant.

But insurgents in the city appeared to be gearing up for a fight. U.S. troops on the edge of the

Aznar to Teach at Georgetown

Outgoing Prime Minister Jose Maria Aznar will teach seminars at Georgetown this fall, his office said Monday. Aznar, who did not seek a third term in elections held on March 14, will teach European politics and transatlantic relations in seminars due to be held twice each semester, an aide said. Aznar's party suffered a surprise defeat in the recent elections, with many Spaniards saying he had provoked the March 11 rail bombings by backing the U.S.-led war in Iraq. (AP)

Group Warns Spain of Coming 'Inferno'

Threat is leveled as police arrest another suspect in train blasts

MADRID | Authorities announced another arrest in the Madrid terror bombings Monday and sent police to patrol subway and bus stations, as a newspaper said a group linked to al Qaeda threatened to turn Spain into "an inferno."

Court officials said the arrest was made on Saturday. No details were given on the man's identity or possible role in the March 11 train attacks, which killed 191 people. The arrest raises to 16 the number of people in custody, including six charged with mass murder.

The newspaper ABC reported that hours before Saturday's suicide blast in which five suspected terrorists killed themselves, it received a fax from a group that had claimed responsibility for the March 11 bombings. The group warned it would turn Spain "into an inferno" unless the country withdrew its support for the United States and pulled Spanish troops from Iraq and Afghanistan, ABC said.

The Interior Ministry said officials "attach a certain credibility to the authorship [of the letter], but not to the threat" contained in it. (AP)

CRACKDOWN ON GROUP

→ The investigation into the

Madrid attacks has focused on the Moroccan Islamic Combatant Group, which has links to al Qaeda and is related to a group suspected in deadly bombings last year in Casablanca, Morocco.

In France, authorities detained 13 suspected members of the group in a dawn raid Monday stemming from the attacks in Casablanca. French prosecutor Yves Bot said authorities do not have evidence linking them to the Madrid bombings, however.

Flash Flood in Northern Mexico Kills 25

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, MEXICO | Torrential rains swelled a tributary of the Rio Grande by 25 feet early Monday, causing a flash flood that inundated a Mexican border city, killing at least 25 people and forcing hundreds more into shelters.

Dozens were reported missing and the death toll was expected to rise. Mexico declared a state of emergency in the area.

Floodwaters from the Escondido

River began receding after the rain stopped by midday, but dark clouds loomed over Piedras Negras, a city of 200,000 people about 150 miles southwest of San Antonio.

Emergency workers patrolled the city, moving residents from low-lying areas to shelters. (AP)

Russian Scientist Found Guilty Of Selling Secrets

MOSCOW | Researcher Igor Sutyagin was found guilty of espionage Monday, Russian news agencies reported, in a case that raised fears of a resurgence of Soviet-style tactics and alarmed the scientific community.

Sutyagin, a scholar at Moscow's respected USA and Canada Institute, was jailed in October 1999 on charges he sold information on nuclear submarines and missile warning systems to a British company that Russian investigators claim was a CIA cover.

Sutyagin, who faces up to 20 years in prison, maintained the analyses he wrote were based on open sources and that he had no reason to believe the company was an intelligence cover. His lawyer told Interfax he would appeal. (AP)

Metro Considers Searches

Board chair skeptical of tentative plan to inspect passengers

WASHINGTON | Metro has developed a tentative plan for conducting random searches of its riders to protect against terrorist attacks, a spokeswoman said Monday.

But the idea — which drew scrutiny from the Metro board's chairman — is just an option being weighed and is not yet finalized, said spokeswoman Lisa Farbstein.

"At this point, it's truly nothing more than a consideration," she said. The measure may be implemented if intelligence or world events warrants such action, she said.

Farbstein said the searches probably would be administered by Metro Transit Police, but said she did not know specific details, including whether searches would apply to either buses or rail, or both.

Metro Board Chairman Robert Smith, who represents Maryland on the board, said in an interview he was not aware of the plan, but said the notion was "fairly extreme."

Metro riders could face inspections under a plan being considered by the agency.

"I've got a lot of concerns about a program like that. It would undergo some intense scrutiny and investigation on our part before we ever entered into anything like that," he said.

Metro ramped up security efforts following commuter train bombings last month in Madrid.

Last week the government warned that trains and buses may be targeted this summer by terrorists using bombs hidden in bags or luggage. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

Man Arrested Still Not Connected to Arsons

GREENBELT, MD. | A man arrested by the Washington area arson task force still had not been charged Monday in connection with any of 35 suspicious fires.

But Noel Gibson remained jailed on a charge of making a false statement to a federal investigator. Gibson also agreed to not seek release on bond pending resolution of an odometer fraud charge in Fairfax County, Va. — a case unrelated to the investigation of the fires.

The Riverside, Md., man was arrested March 31, after he allegedly made a false statement to detective Brian Padgett of the Prince George's County Police Department. Padgett was temporarily deputized as a federal marshal while on duty with the Washington Area Arson Task Force.

The task force issued a news release Monday stating that fingerprints provided by Gibson do not match a print found on evidence acquired from the scene of an early fire. However, authorities later said that did not mean Gibson had been ruled out as a suspect. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Assembly Misses Ehrlich's Deadline

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | The legislature failed to meet the Monday deadline for passing the state budget, requiring Gov. Robert Ehrlich to issue a proclamation that will extend the session if work isn't completed on the budget by midnight April 12.

Such proclamations have become routine in recent years, but the budget generally is completed well before the end of the session.

Most legislative leaders expect the work will be done on time again this year. (AP)

Banking Giant to Cut Jobs

Bank of America to eliminate 12,500 positions after merger

CHARLOTTE, N.C. | Bank of America announced Monday it is cutting 12,500 jobs over the next two years as a result of its merger with FleetBoston Financial.

The cuts, which represent about 7 percent of the companies' combined work force of 181,000, will begin this month. About 30 percent of them will be accomplished through attrition.

The Charlotte-based bank has said it expects to get about $650 million in savings from trimming overlapping operations and processes.

Several workers leaving Bank of America's headquarters in downtown Charlotte on Monday evening were not aware of the company's plans. Loan officer Veronica Dawkins said she had not received any word from the company.

"No one has given me any indication whatsoever that I need to worry," Dawkins said. "I'm hoping it works out for everybody."

Spokeswoman Eloise Hale would not specify where positions would be eliminated, saying only that they will take place "corporation-wide."

As part of Bank of America's merger agreement with FleetBoston, announced last Thursday, the company committed to maintain overall employment levels in New England.

AFTER THE MEGA-MERGER

BANK OF AMERICA CORP. completed its $47 billion acquisition of FleetBoston Financial last Thursday, creating the nation's No. 3 bank with assets estimated at $966 billion.

The bank has about 35 million consumer and small business customers, about 5,700 branches from throughout the country and about 16,500 ATMs.

Its assets trail only Citigroup and the planned merger between Bank One and J.P. Morgan Chase. (AP)

Eckerd Buyout Puts CVS on Top

Drugstore chain leaps to the top of the heap with $2.15B deal

DALLAS | CVS scrambled to the top ranks of the drugstore industry by acquiring about half of J.C. Penney's Eckerd chain to push past Walgreen in number of stores and challenge its rival in total revenue.

Penney announced Monday that it had sold Eckerd to CVS and Canada's Jean Coutu Group in two deals valued at $4.53 billion.

CVS of Woonsocket, R.I., will get about 1,260 Eckerd stores and support facilities in Texas, Florida and several southern states, as well as its pharmacy benefits management and mail order businesses, for $2.15 billion. It will rename the stores.

Jean Coutu will get 1,539 Eckerd stores in 13 Northeast and mid-Atlantic states and the chain's Florida headquarters for $2.38 billion in cash. Those stores will continue under the Eckerd name.

The deals announced Monday will make CVS the biggest U.S. drugstore operator as measured by the number of stores, with more than 5,000, leapfrogging over industry leader Walgreen, which said it had 4,336 stores as of Feb. 29.

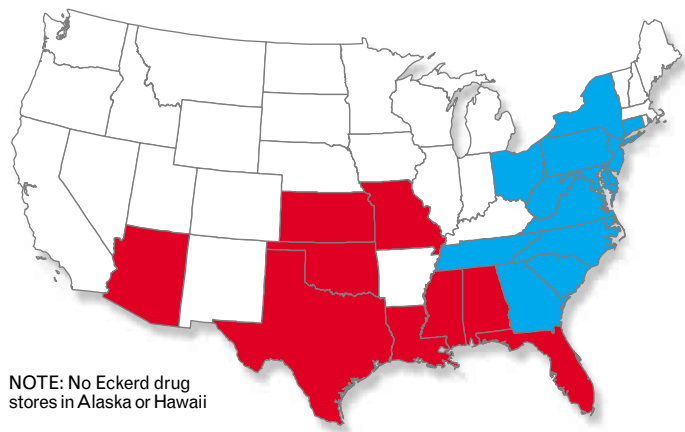

In terms of revenue, Walgreen could retain a slim lead. It had $35.1 billion in sales in the 12 months that ended Feb. 29, compared with $26.9 billion for CVS and $7 billion in annual sales for the Eckerd stores that CVS acquired.

The deal is subject to regulatory approval, but Penney expects it to close before the end of July.

Drug Store Dividends

The sale of J.C. Penney's 2,800 Eckerd drug stores will be divided among CVS Corp. and Canada's Jean Coutu Group Inc.

- Eckerd stores to be acquired by CVS
- Eckerd stores to be acquired by Jean Coutu Group

NOTE: No Eckerd drug stores in Alaska or Hawaii

Low-Cost Airlines High in Satisfaction

WASHINGTON | Three of the top four airlines in 2003 were low-cost carriers, with JetBlue Airways leading the pack with the best overall performance, according to an annual study released Monday.

Alaska Airlines came in second; Southwest was rated No. 3; America West was fourth; and US Airways, ranked No. 1 last year when it was still in bankruptcy, was fifth.

JetBlue had the second-best on-time performance, and fliers also filed fewer complaints to the Transportation Department than all other airlines but Southwest.

The report was based on Transportation Department data. (AP)

Lady Vols Stand in Huskies' Path

UConn aims for three-peat in Thursday's game

WOMEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL | Everyone, it seems, has a spin on this latest national championship game between Connecticut and Tennessee. Jessica Moore's is unique.

When Connecticut goes for its third straight NCAA title in women's basketball Tuesday, the last obstacle for the Huskies is the only school that has won three in a row.

"I was comparing it to Miss America," said Moore, UConn's

Auriemma

Summitt

6-foot-3 center. "After she is done reigning, she passes the crown down to someone else. It's like if we win it [Tuesday] night, then they will be passing the crown down to us."

Actually, that crown already has been passed. With its two straight titles and three in four years, Connecticut has supplanted Tennessee as the nation's top women's program.

Even Tennessee's Shanna Zolman said this is "Geno's era," a reference to UConn's coach, Geno Auriemma.

That's what gives this rivalry a buzz, no matter how many times they meet in the finals. This will be the second straight year the schools have played in the women's championship game and the fourth since 1995.

Connecticut (30-4) kept its title hopes alive with a 67-58 victory over Minnesota on Sunday night. Tennessee (31-3) beat LSU 52-50.

The subject of Auriemma's relationship with Tennessee coach Pat Summitt is bound to surface. Last year, Auriemma called Tennessee the "Evil Empire."

"We really don't have a relationship," Summitt said.

Auriemma seemed tired of the whole thing. "That's irrelevant," he snapped. "Only thing that exists is UConn plays Tennessee, five on five in basketball." CHUCK SCHOFFNER (AP)

LIVE ONLINE

D.C. United

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Washington Post staff writer STEVE GOFF was online Monday to discuss Freddy Adu's debut, D.C. United's opener and the MLS season.

Besides putting fannies in the seats, what skills does Freddy Adu bring to the team? Will his playing time be earned or will another more skilled teammate be on the bench while Freddy plays?

His ball control and acceleration are breathtaking. Once he becomes more comfortable in an MLS game, I think we'll see him do some amazing things.

United was dominating the match until Freddy came into the game and the momentum completely changed. Was coach Peter Nowak second-guessing himself at all about making the sub when he did?

Good point. United was doing quite well early in the second half. Was it Adu's fault that United's momentum faded when he entered? I'm not sure.

Who will have more goals this year, Alecko Eskandarian or Adu?

If I had to guess, I would say Eskandarian. But it's a very long season and things could change, emerge, develop many times over the next seven months.

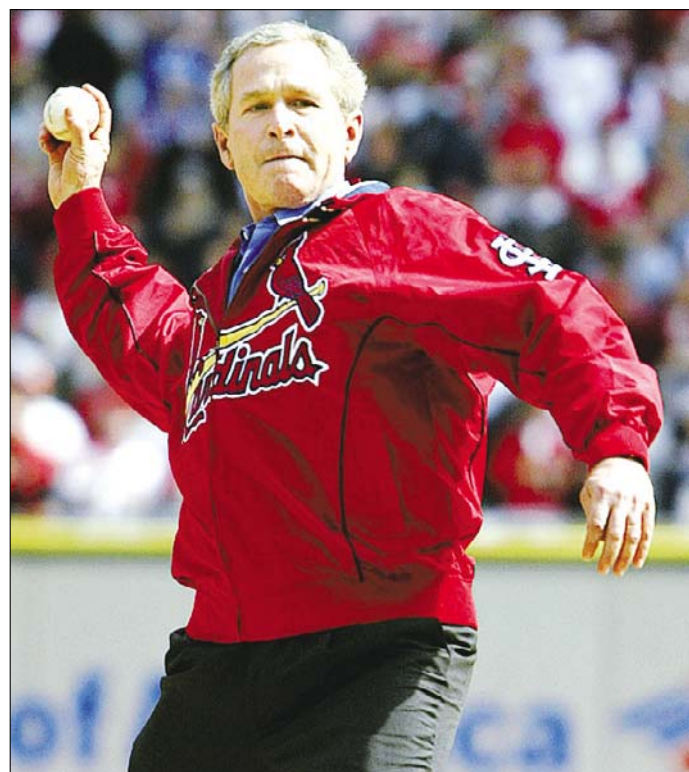

After its performance against San Jose, do you think that D.C. United can win the MLS cup?

Sure, why not? There's not a big difference in MLS between all the teams. Last year, San Jose and Chicago were a little better than everyone else and Dallas had a nightmare season, but all others weren't much different from each other.

What is the real deal with United President Kevin Payne's pre-game announcement about a new stadium? Was it just playing politics or is there a real plan in place?

No official plan in place, but they've made progress and hope to be able to reveal more details this summer. The two primary locations being considered are next to RFK and as part of the city's Anacostia Waterfront Initiative.

HARDBALL: President Bush throws out the opening pitch before the St. Louis-Milwaukee game in Missouri on Monday. Most teams started their seasons Monday, although New York and Tampa Bay played last week in Japan, and Baltimore hosted Boston on Sunday night.

When Larry Met Magic

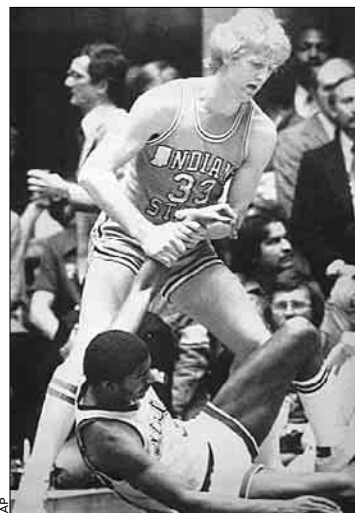

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL | The 1979 national final was the day Magic Johnson and Larry Bird gave college basketball a permanent spot among America's top sports events.

Twenty-five years later, as Georgia Tech and Connecticut prepared for their title game Monday night, many of the players involved in the Magic-Bird matchup concede they didn't realize they were part of history at the time.

As is true in so many cases, the game didn't live up to the hype.

Stifled by Michigan State's zone defense and a number of long-armed players, Indiana State's Bird shot 7-for-21. Johnson played a great game for Michigan State, going 8-for-15 for 24 points to lead the Spartans to win 75-64 in a game that didn't seem that close.

It always bothered Bird that he didn't play better, and that he never really embraced his role in one of the most important college games ever. Not until this year, in fact, did Bird go back to Indiana State to

"I've always been heartbroken that I couldn't bring the championship back to Terre Haute," he told the crowd that day. EDDIE PELLIS (AP)

Viewers Tune In for Adu

Ratings for Freddy Adu's debut in Major League Soccer were up 64 percent from last year's MLS telecast on ABC. Saturday's season opener between D.C. United and San Jose drew a 1.8 overnight rating, up from last year's 1.1 for the league's opener on ABC. The 14-year-old Adu played 29 minutes for United and did not score in the 2-1 victory over the Earthquakes. (AP)

Ivan Rodriguez, Rondell White and Jason Johnson made sure the Detroit Tigers had a different start

Capitals' 'Ugly' Season Put Out of Its Misery

PRO HOCKEY | Finally, mercifully, the Washington Capitals' worst season in 26 years is over.

What a relief for a team that began the season with Jaromir Jagr, Peter Bondra and Robert Lang and ended it stocked with minor leaguers who had no business playing heavy minutes on an NHL team.

"Ever since the trade deadline, it's been tough," said goaltender Olaf Kolzig, one of the few established veterans to survive a mid-season fire sale.

Coach Bruce Cassidy was fired after a poor start and was replaced by assistant Glen Hanlon. When it became apparent the Capitals weren't going to recover, owner Ted Leonsis saw his team headed for $30 million in losses and ordered a massive payroll reduction.

The Capitals swooned to finish 23-46-10-3. They used a franchise-record 51 players, including a goaltender who was struggling to find minor-league work early in the season.

The leading scorer on the roster at the end of the season was center Jeff Halpern, who had 19 goals and 25 assists. "If I'm the leading scorer on this team, we're not going to win too many games," Halpern said.

Said defenseman Brendan Witt: "It was an ugly season. All we can do is regroup and learn from it. We don't want to go through this ever again. Personally, I don't ever want to see this again." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

WHAT A CATCH: Catcher Javy Lopez homered off of Pedro Martinez in his first game as a Baltimore Oriole on Sunday.

O's Upbeat After Opener

Lopez, Tejada, Palmeiro impressive in debut

PRO BASEBALL | The Baltimore Orioles spent six weeks rehearsing for opening night, then lifted the curtain on a new season with a flawless performance worthy of a standing ovation.

Their motivation now is to maintain that good feeling with an adequate encore.

After beating Pedro Martinez and the Boston Red Sox on Sunday night, the Orioles on Tuesday will seek to maintain their grasp on first place in the AL East by defeating another accomplished pitcher, Curt Schilling. Facing him will be Eric DuBose, who has a career record of 3-6 and spent last year pitching for Triple-A Ottawa.

Free agent signees Miguel Tejada, Rafael Palmeiro and Javy Lopez combined to go 7-for-11 with a homer and four RBIs. That proved to be more than enough offense for Orioles' ace Sidney Ponson, who worked out of one jam after another to win his first opening day start.

When B.J. Ryan got the final out, those remaining in the crowd of 47,683 at Camden Yards stood and applauded. For at least one night, the Orioles were alone in first place and rookie manager Lee Mazzilli made all the right moves. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Drexler Glides Into Hall of Fame

BASKETBALL | Clyde Drexler and Lynette Woodard led a group of six elected to the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame on Monday.

Joining Drexler, chosen among the top 50 players in NBA history, and Woodard, an Olympic gold medalist and the first female Harlem Globetrotter, are Bill Sharman, already in the hall as a player who will be inducted as coach, the late Maurice Stokes, the 1956 NBA rookie of the year, Jerry Colangelo, chairman of the Phoenix Suns, and Drazen Dalipagic, an international star from Yugoslavia.

Drexler, nicknamed "The Glide" for his speed, ball handling and swooping moves to the basket, was selected to the hall in his first year of eligibility. In his 15-year NBA career, Drexler led the Portland Trail Blazers to the NBA Finals in 1990 and '92, and won a championship with Houston in 1995. (AP)

OUTGOING WEEKEND NIGHTLIFE

A History of 'Out' TV

Gay characters and plots have been on prime time for years

TELEVISION | The Museum of Television and Radio's current screening series, "Not That There's Anything Wrong With That," is named after a running "Seinfeld" joke: Jerry and George are overheard in a coffee shop by a reporter who assumes they're gay, which they endeavor to disprove. ("Not that there's anything wrong with that," they hasten to add.)

But that 1993 "Seinfeld" outing appears far into the chronologically organized exhibition, which surprised even its curator, Barry Monush, by stretching back to the early 1960s.

Network series occasionally mentioned "homosexuality" at a time when TV's husbands and wives weren't yet routinely sharing double beds. While exploring the museum's tens of thousands of programs, Monush found "a show I'd never heard of" — "Espionage," a 1964 NBC drama referencing a blackmail plot involving a spy. "The enemy lets the word out that he got married late, and he knows someone who purchases antique furniture. It's all coded stuff."

Monush "wanted to make sure we didn't just whitewash everything, so we put together a separate package of two programs actually protested at the time by gay organizations" — 1970s episodes of "Police Woman," with stereotyped lesbian criminals, and "Marcus Welby, M.D.," where a patient fears he might be gay. "Robert Young's reaction is negative, like 'We might be able to cure you.'"

Monush's comprehensive approach showcases little-known landmarks like ABC's 1972 sitcom "The Corner Bar," with TV's first gay regular character, and David

Brenner's unaired 1976 beauty-salon sitcom "Snip" alongside more famous portrayals on "Thirtysomething," "My So-Called Life," "Frasier" and "Melrose Place."

"It's interesting to see how much time it took to make progress to a certain degree on the networks. But there's a downside today," Monush said. Cable series like Showtime's

"Queer as Folk" and "The L Word" deal so explicitly with gay life that Monush said "the networks have sort of leveled off on how far they want to go. You get the feeling you're watching gay characters in a straight world, where the two shows on Showtime present a gay world with straight people visiting."

Clapton's Blues Go Deep

Slowhand covers Robert Johnson's songs

MUSIC | It's hard to go wrong with Eric Clapton doing an entire album of Robert Johnson covers.

The only mystery is why it took so long for Clapton to do it.

"Me and Mr. Johnson" (Reprise) is a treat, both for fans of the blues and Clapton, who eschews anything related to pop and dives into perhaps his largest musical influence.

Johnson is known to have written only 29 songs during his brief, legendary career in the 1930s.

Clapton puts 14 of them together in this collection that is aided by a standout backing band, including Billy Preston on keyboards and Jerry Portnoy on harmonica.

Many of the songs are recognizable, even to the few Clapton fans who may not be familiar with Johnson's work, including "Come On In My Kitchen" and "Kindhearted Woman Blues."

Clapton is loose throughout and it's clear that he is enjoying the tip of his guitar to Johnson.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE MASTER: Even Clapton's shirt's got the blues.

WINNING WAYS: Author Edward P. Jones signs books earlier this year.

D.C.'s Jones Wins Fiction Pulitzer

AWARDS | The 2004 Pulitzer Prize for fiction was awarded Monday to Washington, D.C., native Edward P. Jones for his book "The Known World," a historical novel about a black slave owner.

Jones, who spent 10 years between books, had previously won the National Book Critics Circle Award for his novel.

It was the 53-year-old author's first book since "Lost in the City," his 1993 collection of short stories about life in Washington.

Jones was a proofreader for the trade publication Tax Notes before he launched a writing career.

The Pulitzer for drama went to Doug Wright for "I Am My Own Wife," the tale of a real-life German transvestite who survived both the Nazis and the Communists.

The Pulitzer Prize for biography was captured by William Taubman for "Khrushchev: The Man and His Era."

In history, the winner was Steven Hahn for "A Nation Under Our Feet: Black Political Struggles in the Rural South From Slavery to the Great Migration."

The award for general nonfiction went to Anne Applebaum for "Gulag: A History." The poetry winner was Franz Wright for "Walking to Martha's Vineyard."

The award for music went to "Tempest Fantasy" for violin, piano and clarinet, by Paul Moravec.

CATCHING UP | The current batch of “24” episodes (9 p.m., Fox) all take place during the sorrowful break of day.

Like the rest of the world, I’ve been thoroughly broken of my “24” habit by Fox’s curious tradition of yanking it from the schedule for months at a time. So for those who have forgotten to keep up, “24” remains knee-deep in intrigue, but somewhere along the way, the creators of this superior series have gone off the deep end. Who said that tense, nail-biting dramas had to be so bleak?

Let’s recap. Our hero, Jack Bauer (Keifer Sutherland), is a junkie. Bad

LORENZO AUSTRI/FOX

WHAT TIME IS IT? Jack Bauer ponders.

guys from several different nationalities have threatened to release a deadly virus that promises to kill just about everybody. A vial has been released in a hotel, where a thousand or so trapped guests are going bonkers while waiting to die a slow, messy, agonizing death. The first lady is a murderer and she’s just bamboozled the president into covering up for her. But he’s got bigger fish to clean — he’s just become the puppet of a mass murderer. And, worst of all, it’s only 6 o’clock in the morning!

AGELESS POETRY

Piri Thomas, 75-year-old author, poet and performer, recites and performs many of his poems in the vibrant documentary “Every Child Is Born a Poet” on INDEPENDENT LENS (10 p.m., PBS).

REVENGE OF THE GEEKS

FREAKS AND GEEKS is now available on DVD. The set contains all 18 episodes, including those that never aired on NBC during its brief run. Set in 1980, the show followed a confused, brainy high-schooler (Linda Cardellini) trying to find her way among the school’s cliques. James Franco was the under-achieving tough guy clever enough to know he’s trapped by his cool image. It wasn’t a surprise that “Freaks” was canceled — what was shocking was that a show this great ever appeared on network television.

CASH ONLY: Jesse Rainwater writes a check for his appointment with Dr. Vern Cherewatenko, who takes cash from patients instead of insurance payments.

Easy Money

INSURANCE | When Chuck O'Brien visits his doctor, they talk about his heart problems and his diet, but never about his insurance. That's because Dr. Vern Cherewatenko, of Renton, Wash., is one of a small but growing number of physicians who are dumping insurance contracts in favor of cash.

When O'Brien leaves, he writes a check for $50 and he's done — no forms, no copayments.

Is this the health care wave of the future? Probably not, experts say. Nine out of 10 doctors contract with managed-care companies. But cash-only medicine is becoming an increasingly attractive option for doctors frustrated by red tape and for the 43 million Americans who lack health insurance.

Cherewatenko started a group called SimpleCare to spread the gospel of cash-only medicine. Membership has grown to 1,500 doctors. Some reject all insurance and take only cash, while others continue to accept insurance while offering discounts for cash-paying patients.

Cash crusaders acknowledge the need for some type of insurance. Without it, hospitalization would force many people into bankruptcy. But they think health insurance should work more like car insurance: you pay for the routine maintenance and little dings yourself, and insurance pays for more expensive repairs. REBECCA COOK (AP)

What are some good PDA software programs for tracking calories and exercise?

I've used Balancelog from www.healthetech.com for a number of years and really like it. Dietpower.com also features a program like this. And Nutridiary.com, which is out of England, has gotten good reviews, although I'm not sure you can download it to your PDA.

What is the best Web site for counting calories?

The gold standard for all calorie counting is the U.S. Department of Agriculture's handbook, which is free, online and available for download to your desktop or PDA. Find it at: <http://www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/foodcomp/search/>

Is there a good place in the D.C. area to find wide-width walking or athletic shoes for women?

Modell's had some extra-wide shoes. You might also check out DSW in Rockville. And I've found some good shoe buys at Filene's Basement, too.

E-Mail's Evil Twin

Spam masquerading as legit dupes even savvy Internet users

SCAMS | Mark Nichols runs an online gift shop in Crosby, N.D., and considers himself Internet savvy. Yet like so many other Web surfers, he got duped by an e-mail scam anyhow.

A message saying it was from eBay Inc. asked Nichols to submit his password and other information to update his account. The e-mail arrived shortly after Nichols's credit card had expired, so he didn't suspect the site was phony.

As these so-called phishing scams proliferate, companies are sharpening technological tools to counter them. Education alone, many agree, isn't enough.

Anti-phishing software is likely to soon be added to the arsenal of digital shields forged to stop spam, viruses and hacking. Security companies are also building tools for banks and merchants to use behind the scenes.

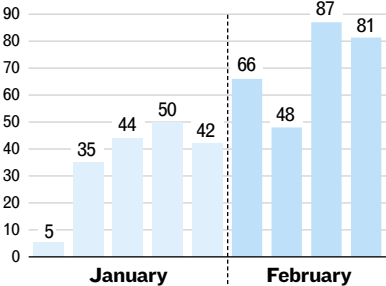

Phishing scams have been around for years but have in recent months become more numerous — and sophisticated.

Scammers now copy and paste Web coding from real sites like Citibank's to give their fraudulent messages and the sites they lead to an aura of authenticity.

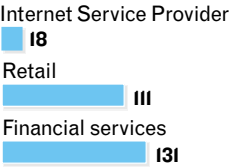

Netting E-Mail 'Phish'

New software may soon become available to block phishing scams, those unwanted e-mail messages claiming to come from banks, insurance companies, retailers or credit card companies asking for personal information.

ANTI-PHISHING WORKING GROUP/AP

The Anti-Phishing Working Group identified 282 new phishing scams in February, up from 176 a month earlier, said chairman David Jevans.

Jevans said no hard numbers are available on monetary losses from phishing, which represents only a sliver of overall fraud. The greater cost, he said, is in consumer confidence.

To fight back, eBay in February added an Account Guard feature to its toolbar for Microsoft's Internet Explorer browser. A green light appears when users are on a site run by eBay or its PayPal subsidiary. The light goes red for known fraudulent sites. A warning also appears any time users try to enter their eBay or PayPal passwords elsewhere.

In mid-April, EarthLink Inc. plans to release a toolbar of its own to block users from fake EarthLink sites. The list of bad sites will be refreshed every few hours.

Yahoo! Inc. and Microsoft Corp. are developing e-mail authentication systems, but that will take time.

E-mail users flooded with phishing scams welcome the efforts, though many remain skeptical.

"You create technology to prevent that, but hackers and the bad guys are just going to one -up you," said Don Bangert III, a freelance programmer in Granite Falls, Wash.

LIVE ONLINE

Fast Forward

ROB PEGORARO's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. He chats every other Monday at 2 p.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

Help! I have $300 worth of Gateway gift cards. Now I hear they have closed their retail stores and are having financial problems. Should I spend these gift cards as soon as possible?

If you want to spend them in the stores, you've got less than 48 hours left. But you should be able to use the cards online as well — the card should have a code that you can enter when you check out on the Web store. If yours doesn't include any such thing, you should call Gateway ASAP to find out what the deal is.

What do you make of Google's new Gmail e-mail service?

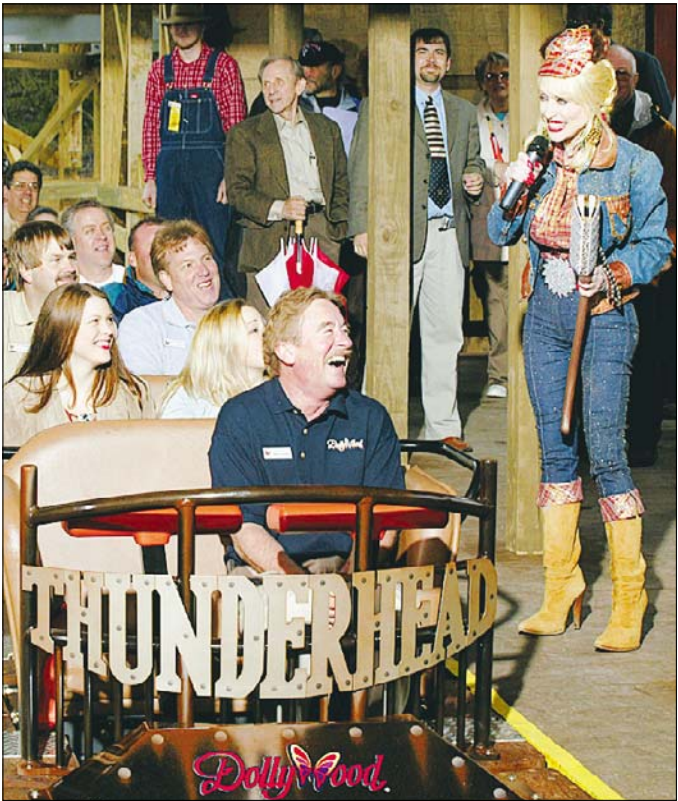

I'm fascinated and slightly frightened by it. Fascinated because when Google sets out to do something, it generally does the job very well. But I'm frightened by the prospect of getting ads served up in response to the content of individual messages. To paraphrase what somebody said in a recent Post story: If somebody sends you condolences about the death of a loved one, will you see ads from caskets.com next to that message?

Must I have a home network if I want to share a high-speed Internet connection between two different computers in my house?

Yes, you'll need a network, but it doesn't have to be complicated. If both computers are in one room, buying a cheap Ethernet router will suffice. Or throw together a WiFi network — one access point that will plug into the cable or DSL modem, and wireless receiver cards for any computers that can't reach the access point via Ethernet cable.

Express Train to Heck

DOLLY PARTON, hosting Dollywood's annual opening day, says she has no plans to retire after nearly four decades in the country music business. "I'll be like Bob Hope, touring when I'm 100," said the 58-year-old Sevierville, Tenn., native. "I love being busy." Though she has no plans to tour this year, she does wants to do a musical about her life story for Broadway. "I will never retire," Parton said. "I hope to fall dead in the middle of some great event or some great song I'm singing." (AP)

Hollywood's New Crusade:
Fire Safety for Aging Stars

DYAN CANNON suffered smoke inhalation when a fire broke out in her condominium, briefly forcing residents to evacuate the high-rise building. Los Angeles County fire officials received the call early Sunday. Cannon said she was sleeping at the time. "The smoke detector woke her and her dogs up and, luckily, she got out safe," said fire Capt. Steve Martin. (AP)

DENIALS
4 A GOOD TIME, TXT BEKS

Reports that DAVID BECKHAM was involved with a former personal assistant were splashed across British newspapers Monday. The frenzy began with a Sunday tabloid report — complete with explicitly sexual text messages — that the soccer star had an affair with Rebecca Loos in Madrid last fall while his wife, Victoria, was in England. Beckham issued a statement Sunday describing the story as "ludicrous" but stopping short of denying the allegations. (AP)

An excerpt from Becks's naughty text messages, as printed in the tabs: "Can just imagine how  u are"

TRAITORS
Bob's Selling Bras, Not Out

BOB DYLAN appears in a new series of television ads for Victoria's Secret, his grizzled face intercut with shots of model Adriana Lima cavorting though Venice in a bra, panties and spike heels. Dylan's song "Love Sick," from his 1997 album "Time Out of Mind," provides the musical backdrop for the ad. It's the first time in his 40-plus years as an international star that Dylan has appeared in an ad campaign, although his "The Times They Are a Changin'" was used in a Bank of Montreal ad in 1996. Back then, Dylan was ripped for selling out. (AP)

RESEARCH
So ... Does Death Row Suck?

JAMIE FOXX has hanging out at San Quentin prison to research a role for the new F/X movie "Redemption," in which he plays Stanley "Tookie" Williams, the founder of the Crips street gang. For the past 24 years, Williams has been on death row for four murders. Foxx said Williams was in brought in chains and that "some of the questions we had to ask in order to get the real story irritated him a little bit." (AP)

Foxx donned wire-rim glasses to look more threatening and gain respect.

MESSAGES
Alanis Makes a Point

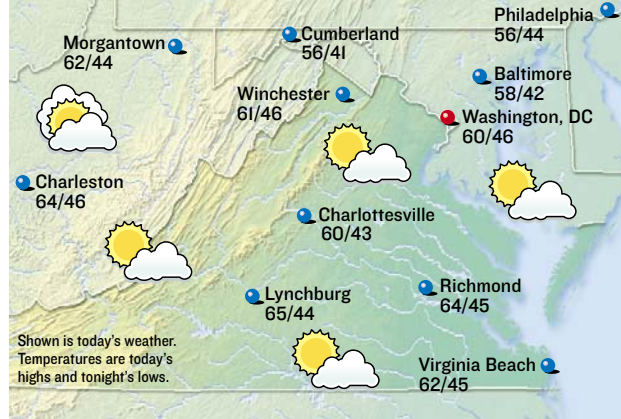

In a stunt ostensibly intended to target U.S. "censorship," ALANIS MORISSETTE stripped down to a bodysuit adorned with painted-on nipples and nether regions at Canada's Juno music awards on Sunday. "We can't show nipples on national TV," she jibed before letting a dressing gown drop to the floor. (EXPRESS)

TO THE EDITOR

THE CONDESCENDING tone of Don Simmons's Monday letter in response to Dan Miller's Friday column ("Call of the Child") infuriated me. Rather than write about the column's topic, Simmons went for a personal attack. Simmons does not realize that Miller accurately portrayed the feelings of many singles (myself included) and childless couples in the area. This may shock Simmons, but we don't view his progeny as the greatest thing since sliced bread. I wish to thank Miller for writing his column and allowing me to empathize with him.

IN MONDAY'S ENTERTAINMENT section, Kurt Cobain is once again applauded for his haunting legacy ("Noise of Art"), this time in his paintings. He was no martyr-hero, he was a father and a drug addict. I love his music as much as the next '90s child, but I also see the effect that his death is having on current teen angst and the outlets it is finding. Kurt Cobain has become the poster boy for suicide. The man who hated the media hype cannot escape it, even in death.

Steamy Scots

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Actress TILDA SWINTON was online Monday to discuss her new movie, "Young Adam," a moody, sensual thriller set in Scotland in the 1950s.

Your movie is adapted from a book by Alexander Trocchi, a Scottish Beat writer. Tell us a little about it.

"Young Adam" is the story of a young writer, played by Ewan McGregor. When we meet him, he's pretty alienated from his own writing and also from society. He goes to live and work with a couple, played by me and Peter Mullan, who run a barge transporting coal and general provisions up and down canals in the west coast of Scotland.

I have heard that there are some very steamy scenes with you and Ewan McGregor in this film. Does this ever concern you as an actress?

With material like this, not at all because the territory of the film demands a kind of realism that I felt very comfortable providing.

The film is rated NC-17. Will it be edited to get a better rating?

We have not been asked to edit scenes. Sony Classics, which is distributing the film, is clearly in agreement that the film would suffer if scenes were edited. I have no problem with the film being regarded as a grown-up film for those over the age of 17. I do have a small problem with the stigma of the NC-17 rating, because somehow it indicates that the movie is beyond the pale.

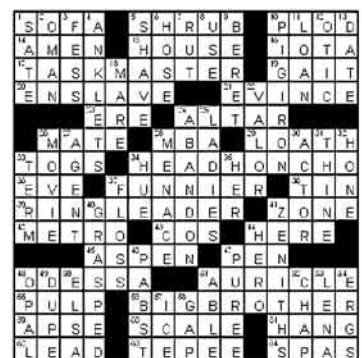

I hear David Byrne does the music for the film. What's it like?

David does a lot of work with musicians from various parts of the world; for this film, he had the opportunity to work with musicians of the country of his birth. The music is very lyrical and undulating. Water plays a very important part in the film. It's the visual score of the film and David has made it aural, too.

A Training Program for Everyone

Our six-month training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. We start with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increase the distance. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete this program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

There are five group run sites located throughout the Washington, DC metro area each weekend. Choose the location most convenient for you.

Guided Fundraising

The rate of new AIDS cases in Washington, DC is 12 times higher than the national average. The money we raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, housing, and other vital AIDS services – to help keep people with HIV/AIDS alive until there's a cure.

In the past six years, we've helped 14,000 people nationwide raise more than $45 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to support you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.
